Brothels, Bars, and Fourth Graders: Project Archaeology and Educational Opportunities Possible with the Vanoli Project

Volume 27, Issue 6
September 2012

September 19 (Wednesday) - No-host dinner from 6:00-7:00 pm in the basement room of Wild Boar Coffee, 1501 S. College, Fort Collins. Program begins after a short business meeting at 7:00 pm. Program: Rebecca (Becca) Simon, CSU, 2nd year Anthropology graduate student, presents Brothels, Bars, and 4th Graders: Project Archaeology and Educational Opportunities Possible with the Vanoli Project

The "Vanoli Project" is a collaborative effort headed by Dr. Mary Van Buren, CSU, and funded by the State Historical Fund. The main goal of the project is to produce the final report on the excavations of the Vanoli Sporting Complex (5OR30), a red light district that operated in Ouray, Colorado from ca. 1881-1916. The report will detail excavations which were conducted by Steven Baker from 1970-1980 that yielded over 100,000 artifacts and a large data set for understanding the lives of 19th century Ouray residents.

Becca's thesis project uses data from the Vanoli site to introduce archaeology to fourth graders while teaching Colorado history and fulfilling new state education standards. Previous curricula developed by Project Archaeology, an organization that uses archaeological concepts, techniques, and data to fulfill national education standards, will be used as a model. A recipient of the Greenacre Scholarship, Becca attended the 2012 Society for American Archaeology Annual Meeting in Memphis, TN to reignite her involvement with Project Archaeology and establish the groundwork for her project. Becca will discuss her work with Project Archaeology, the Vanoli Project, and using these experiences to help bring archaeology to the greater public. Becca has BA degrees in Anthropology and English at Pennsylvania State University and is a lab/field tech for Metcalf Archaeological Consultants, Inc. This program is free and open to the public. Please join us!

Overnight the site became the highest, most remote American Indian village recorded in the northern hemisphere. Thomas evaluates the curious questions of why native hunters would give up hunting in the highest mountains and, even more puzzling, why some Native American families would chose to live in this most inhospitable place, at the very top of their known world. Thomas is the featured speaker for the annual Marie Wormington Lecture. $12 member, $15 nonmember <http://www.dmns.org/learn/adults/after-hours/alpine-archaeology-in-the-american-west-indians-in-unexpected-places/>

Bill Lipe Before Lake Powell: Memories of Glen Canyon Archaeology

When the Glen Canyon Dam was completed in 1963, Lake Powell started to fill, eventually extending over 180 miles up the Colorado River from the dam site. Named by John Wesley Powell in 1869, Glen Canyon lay at the heart of the most remote, rugged, and least populated area in the American Southwest. The region's character was transformed by Lake Powell, which now attracts nearly two million visitors a year. From 1958 through 1961, archaeologist Bill Lipe worked for the University of Utah, leading field crews engaged in studying some of the many archaeological sites destined to be destroyed or otherwise affected by the Lake and the hordes of visitors it would bring. He will draw on his recollections, and use a selection of 50 year-old photos and films, to discuss the significance of flooding Glen Canyon, and what was learned about the area's archaeology before it was forever affected by the development of Lake Powell.

Lipe is Professor Emeritus at Washington State University and a Trustee of the Crow Canyon Archaeological Center in Cortez, Colorado. His BA is from the U. of Oklahoma (1957) and his PhD is from Yale (1966). Prior to joining the faculty at Washington State, he taught at Binghamton University (1964-1972) and was Assistant Director for Research at the Museum of Northern Arizona (1972-1976). From 1985 to 1992, he was Research Director (parttime) at the Crow Canyon Archaeological Center in Cortez, Colorado. Major Southwestern field projects include the Glen Canyon (1958-61), Cedar Mesa (1969-76) and Dolores (1978-1985) Archaeological Projects. In 2010, he received the Alfred Kidder Award from the American Anthropological Association for achievement in American archaeology. Recent publications include a chapter in the book Leaving Mesa Verde (edited by Tim Kohler et al.; U. of Arizona Press, 2010) and co-editorship (with Lynne Sebastian) of Archaeology and Cultural Resource Management: Visions for the Future (School of Advanced Research Press, 2009).

Colorado Archaeological Society Code of Ethics

- Members will uphold State and Federal antiquities laws and regulations.
- Excavation of archaeological sites will be conducted only according to professionally accepted procedures developed in consultation with a professional archaeologist and with the written permission of the landowner. The investigator has the responsibility for publication of the results of his/her investigation and for making the collection available for further scientific study.
- Members are encouraged to report archaeological sites to the Office on the State Site Report forms. Materials collected from the surface sites shall be catalogued and described in the site survey report. Collected materials should either be deposited with the State Archaeologist's office or made available for scientific study.
- Members will not support illegal or unscientifically conducted activities by participating in or condoning the sale, exchange or purchase of artifacts obtained from such sites.
- Members who exhibit artifacts will do so in an educational context. Items from burials and objects considered sacred will not be exhibited.
- Members will cooperate with the State Archaeologist and other agencies concerned with archaeology and related fields.
- Members will respect the dignity of groups whose cultural histories are the subject of archaeological investigation.
- Members will not participate in conduct involving dishonesty, deceit, or misrepresentation about archaeological matters.

Folsom Point Submission Guidelines

compiled by Lucy Burris

The Folsom Point is published monthly September through May for the purpose of sharing information with members and friends of the Colorado Archaeological Society, Northern Colorado Chapter. Submissions are welcome and are used at the editor's discretion and may be edited for content, length, and format. Common submissions include book reviews, event announcements, volunteer help requests, activity reports, and local news items. Please follow the guidelines below. Contact the editor with any questions.

- Submit materials by the 1st of the month. The newsletter is published during the first week of the month so events or activities which occur early in the month should be submitted for publication in the prior month.
 - Include contact information in the form of a name, email address, web site, and/or phone number.
 - Illustrations can be used but they may be reduced in size and/or resolution to reduce file size.
 - Event announcements should include specific time and location information, remember not all members live in Fort Collins or even Colorado.
 - Clearly distinguish your own content from that created by others so that proper credit can be given.
 - Submit all material electronically. Acceptable document formats include Microsoft Word documents and plain ASCII text files, as well as plain text in the body of email. Acceptable image formats include .jpg, .tif, and .bmp. Adobe PDF files also can be used. Tables can be sent using Microsoft Excel or embedded in a Word document.
